Sarah Pedersen

Nutrition & MEL Advisor

Data-Driven Nutrition and M&E Leader Driving Global Impact Across Food Systems and Health Policy

sarahpedersen82@gmail.com

Linkedin

Contact

15 Years of experience

Professional Bio:

Passionate about improving global nutrition and health through data-driven solutions, Sarah is a senior expert in Monitoring & Evaluation (M&E) with extensive experience in international development, nutrition, and food systems. With a PhD in International Nutrition from Cornell and over fifteen years leading large-scale evaluations, she specializes in designing rigorous assessments, informing policy, and strengthening food systems to drive sustainable impact.

Her expertise spans survey methodology, nutritional assessment, epidemiology, and agricultural development—ensuring that interventions are evidence-based and effectively implemented. As a former Senior M&E Advisor at USAID, Sarah has led high-profile initiatives that have shaped food security and health policies worldwide.

Skills & Expertise:

Global Health, Humanitarian Assistance, MEL, Climate & Resilience, Agriculture & Food Security

Sectors of Work:

International Development, Public Health, Economic Growth, Climate & Environment, Emergency Relief, Democracy & Governance

Languages Spoken:

English, French, Spanish, Danish

JOIN

US